Let's Cheer the Boys Off to the Army! Join the Big Party Down Town Tomorrow Morning!

Let's send them off with a cheer!

Who?

The 201 Richland county boys who leave to join the army.

When?

Rain or shine at 7:30 tomorrow morning!

Did you know that in the past, when Richland county men left to join the army, they went away with no fanfare, no cheers, no gaiety—but only with tearful farewells from members of their family to speed them on their way?

Don't you think—and You, and You, and You—that when a boy leaves to enter his country's service he deserves to be sent away with a cheer and a smile?

Mothers and girl friends will shed tears, of course—that's natural. But isn't it better to mix up a few cheers and smiles with the tears—and let the boys know their town's proud of them?

For some time, a number of people have thought so.

So tomorrow's going to be the occasion of a real send-off.

The largest group of draftees—and the biggest send-off.

One with band music, flags, tooting whistles, cheering friends, confetti and a lot of noise. And a lot of people.

The band music, flags, whistles, etc., are being arranged for.

You and you and you are going to be the people down there cheering when the buses pull out.

You can certainly get up a little earlier tomorrow, can't you? You can certainly do that much if these boys can leave jobs, homes, families and friends to fight for this country, can't you?

Of course you CAN! Well, make sure you DO!

The time is 7:30—and no later. The place, Park avenue and Main, outside the Richland Trust building.

This whole send-off idea was outlined today by Earl Saltzgaber, chairman of the Soldiers-Citizens committee, which has arranged ever since selective service began, farewell parties and gifts for draftees.

But the departure of the men has been so drab and gloomy in the past that Saltzgaber and his committee and members of the Legion and others decided something had to be done about it.

Tomorrow's send-off is IT.

Saltzgaber arranged for the high school band to play for the boys. He made a public appeal today, through The News-Journal, to all merchants in the vicinity to display the flag. He asked all factories in town to sound their factory whistles PROMPTLY AT 8 a. m., the minute at which the buses pull out for Fort Hayes and Fort Thomas.

He was confident both appeals would be answered. He's also hopeful that hundreds upon hundreds of Mans-

NAVY REPORTS SIX ATTACKS FOR WEEK-END

18 American Seamen Killed or Missing Aboard Three Medium Merchantmen.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — The Navy announced today that a small United Nations merchant vessel has been torpedoed off the Atlantic coast.

(By Associated Press)

NORFOLK, Va.—The toll of vessels officially announced as sunk or damaged by Axis submarines off the Atlantic coast in slightly more than two months stood at 65 today after week-end disclosures by the navy that six more ships had been attacked.

Three medium-sized American merchantmen were announced by the navy yesterday as the latest to fall prey to marauding undersea craft, with 18 seamen reported killed or missing.

But an American bomber destroyed at least one of the sinister submersibles with depth charges and machine-gun fire in the same waters, according to an announcement Saturday by Lieut.-Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commander of the eastern army forces.

The possibility that a second enemy submarine may have received a taste of its own medicine arose with the statement by James J. Galvani of Brooklyn, N. Y., third mate of one of the attacked ships, that two planes had flown over the scene and dropped "certainly one and possibly two depth charges."

Tell Story of 11 Days Adrift At Sea

NEW YORK —(INS)— Twenty-seven survivors of a small United Nations merchant vessel, sunk by the guns of an enemy submarine in the Atlantic, today told a dramatic story of spending 11 days in leaking lifeboats 200 miles off Bermuda.

The entire crew of 27, all Dutchmen with the exception of one Venezuelan, was picked up by a Dutch ship, U. S. navy officials revealed. No one was lost.

Pupils 'Dig Down' To Pay for Damage At Ashland Party

More than 50 Mansfield and Ashland high school youths were digging down deep in their pockets today, trying to get together enough money to pay for the damage they caused at a party at the Otter hotel in Ashland on Saturday night.

Dale Hammond, Ashland county sheriff, said today that Jess Otter, manager of the hotel, had complained to him that the youths, 35 boys and 12 girls, had torn up sheets and pillow-cases, damaged shutters, blinds and furniture in what he termed a "wild party" late Saturday.

Otter has agreed to withdraw charges of malicious destruction of property if the youths raise enough money to pay the $72 damage caused, but has given them only until Wednesday night to raise the funds.

Hammond said that about ten of the youths were from Ashland and about 40 from Mansfield. He said that both the Mansfield and Ashland groups had named committees to round up those taking part in the party and to contribute towards the payment of the damage.

The sheriff said that he had not learned of the occasion for the party but that it seemed to have been planned well beforehand.

Plan to List Draftees for Defense Jobs

Selective Service to Mail Questionnaires to 463,500.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Col. C. W. Goble, state selective service director, said today that the first step in mobilization of skilled workers would be taken by state draft headquarters within the next 30 days when job questionnaires are mailed to the 463,500 men who registered for the draft Feb. 16.

"The U. S employment service has asked us to get the questionnaires out as quickly as possible so they probably will be mailed before the regular draft questionnaires," Goble said.

Registrants will be required to fill out questionnaires in duplicate within 10 days and return them to local draft boards. Draft boards will keep one copy and the second will be mailed to the employment service.

Goble said there were no plans at present to mail job questionnaires to men who registered in October, 1940, or July, 1941.

Men who receive the questionnaires will be required to supply name, address and telephone numbers, social security numbers, draft serial and order numbers, race and citizenship status.

They also will be required to state their present occupation, number of years employed in that business, name and address of employer and the job for which they think they would be best fitted.

Registrants also will be required to state the job at which they have worked and the number of years' experience in each. They must state whether they are employed by WPA, NYA or CCC and whether they have full time or part time jobs.

Every registrant's education must be listed in detail. His present job including type of work he does, type of products made by his firm and type of machines he operates must be described fully.

The questionnaire provides that registrants must state in detail their marital status and number of dependents whose support they contribute to, and whether they are now in training for skilled work.

SUN TO STAY

Weatherman Hints Real Spring Weather's on the Way.

The three-day-old spring season brought Mansfield more shivery weather today, but it was a big improvement over the snow and wintry blasts that whipped through the city's streets yesterday.

Better things are in store for the city area tonight, the weatherman promised, with fair weather and rising temperatures expected to start Mansfielders thinking of gardens and Easter shopping.

A chill northwest wind dropped the mercury to 29 degrees this morning as thick ice formed. It wasn't much warmer at noon with the mercury at 36 degrees, only four above freezing. Sunday's top reading was 40.

The war-censored forecast for today said briefly: "Slowly rising temperature; not so cold tonight in west portion."

Gen. MacArthur's Safe Arrival In Australia

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, accompanied by Mrs. MacArthur and their four-year-old son Arthur, are pictured on the platform of the railroad station at Melbourne, Australia. The MacArthurs, accompanied by the general's aides, made a hazardous trip from Batan peninsula by speedboat and plane to Australia where the general took over command of the United Nations forces in the Pacific. This photo was radioed to London from Melbourne and then re-radioed to New York.

Yanks In Australia Find Country Similar to U. S.

Romance Likely to Suffer Though, for There's a Lack of Sufficient Feminine Companionship.

(By Wide World)

By DON WHITEHEAD

NEW YORK—American troops pouring into Australia are finding a not-so-strange people even though they are some 7500 miles from home.

The Yanks are preparing for battle alongside a people they can understand and become chummy with—folks who like American swing music, American-made movies, slang and our national delicacy, the hamburger.

There's much in Australia to make the boys feel at home after they become accustomed to slight variations in manner of speech, customs and habits.

Hollywood has had its influence, and then, too, Australia is a young, vigorous country, of English-Irish-Scotch stock that didn't cling to the old word customs nor accept those of the Orient.

Romance is likely to suffer because of a shortage of girls due to the arrival of so many thousands of troops and the demand for feminine companionship exceeding the supply.

"I'm afraid our girls are going to be grossly spoiled before your

3 Hit-Skip Drivers Fined In Court; Police Hunt 2 Others

Hit-skip drivers ran wild in Mansfield over the week-end with at least five being reported to Mansfield police and with three, all Mansfield residents, being fined upon arraignment in municipal court this morning.

Foster C. Lytle, 90 West Prospect street, was fined $100 and costs and his operator's license was revoked for one year after he pleaded guilty to a charge of failure to stop at the scene of an accident. Lytle was charged with side-swiping an auto operated by Joseph Seiffert, 221 Miller street, yesterday on South Park street. Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended $50 of the fine pending the payment of damages.

John Zgela, 311 Beymiller street, pleaded innocent to a charge of unsafe operation after the charge had been decreased from failure to stop at the scene of an accident. He was fined $10 and costs. Zgela was charged with side-swiping an auto owned by Elmer Steele, Holmesville, R. D. 1, late Saturday on Park avenue east.

Edgar Beverage, 386 Wayne street, was fined $100 and costs with $25 suspended pending payment of damages to William Gerberich, Shelby, R. D. 1. Beverage pleaded guilty to the charge of failing to stop after sideswiping Gerberich's car at Main and Third streets.

Police are still seeking the drivers of cars who sideswiped autos driven by W. W. Boals, jr., Mansfield R. D. 2, and Joseph A. Smith, New London, early yesterday.

BOMBER LANDS IN AIRPORT MUD

Forced Down By Weather, Huge Ship Tears Deep Holes In Hazardous Runways.

A giant U. S. army bomber was forced down on Mansfield's municipal airport at noon yesterday in an emergency landing which tore up huge furrows in the port's runways and which gave new emphasis to the need for improvement of the airport's facilities.

Forced down by adverse weather conditions, the 26-ton bomber, the heaviest plane to ever land at the municipal airport, ploughed deep ruts in the muddy runways while landing and later while taking off.

Camouflaged, the bomber was en route across the continent and was being flown by pilots ferrying it to an unannounced objective. The plane was not damaged in making the emergency landing.

Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff said today that city employes were starting to work immediately to repair the damage but stated that "little could be done until the heavy mud dries up."

A crew of city workers was busy last week grading the port and repairing damaged tiles as the

START INQUIRY IN FURNITURE STORE BLAZE

Firemen Find Flames in Four Different Sections; Check Burglary Evidence.

An investigator from the state fire marshall's office and Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger today were conducting an inquiry into a fire last night at the Reliable Furniture company, 37 West Fourth street. Loss was estimated by the proprietor at between $8,000 and $10,000.

The fact that flames were found in four different parts of the building coupled with evidence indicating that the store had been burglarized led to the investigation.

Firemen were summoned to the store shortly after 7 p. m. Mattresses and furniture were blazing in four widely separated parts of the store. Firemen broke a window in a front door to get inside the smoke-filled building.

Louis Arenson, manager, told Fire Marshal Gale Owens and Chief Seeburger that he believed fire was "the work of a pyromaniac."

Arenson said that he had been in the store at 4.30 p. m. and that at the time, there had been no evidence of a burglary.

Firemen found a broken window in a rear door which was unlocked. A brick was laying on the floor. Fire Capt. Paul Young called this to the attention of police who started an investigation. No money was missing, according to Arenson, except for some change which had been left in a cash drawer.

Arenson said that he didn't know of any person holding a grudge against himself or the store.

Fire Marshal Gale Owens arrived from Marion last night to start an investigation. He questioned employes of the furniture company, neighbors, firemen and policemen, and had photographs taken of the interior of the store.

Chief Seeburger said that Owens would continue his investigation tomorrow. Owens was in Bucyrus today in connection with another case.

Police Search For Trio Who Robbed County Official.

SPRINGFIELD —(INS)— Police today were without clues to the identity of three armed men who kidnaped Paul Tidd, Champaign county recorder and secretary of the Moose lodge at Urbana, and robbed him of $200 before releasing him at a Springfield street corner.

The hold-up occurred while Tidd was leaving the lodge quarters in Urbana early Saturday. One of the men prodded him with a gun, forced him to turn over the keys and robbed the place while another escorted him to his car.

Tidd was forced into a rear seat and covered with a rug after which the men drove around for four hours before putting him out. His car later was found abandoned.

Port Moresby Has Fiercest Attack of War

MacArthur's Airmen Blast Japanese Strength On Timor After Bagging 23 Planes Over Week-End; New Commander Works On Plans.

(By Associated Press)

Sustaining their counter-offensive on the invasion approaches to Australia, the airmen of the MacArthur command struck today at the Japanese right wing in Dutch Timor after having wrecked some two score of the enemy's planes in operations over the week-end.

Despite the heavy losses, mostly hard-to-replace fighter planes, the Japanese sent a bomber and fighter force against Port Moresby today in what Australians admitted was the heaviest attack of the war on that city. The Japanese also attacked Wyndham in western Australia.

An Australian communique said that a Japanese fighter was shot down during a reconnaissance over Dutch Timor, about 300 miles off northwestern Australia, and that Japanese positions at Dili were bombed. The results of the bombing could not be observed.

In their raid on Port Moresby, capital of New Guinea, the Japanese showed they retained a considerable striking power, despite their week-end losses. The raiding force consisted of 19 bombers and three fighters.

The enemy attacked the New Guinea harbor, forward base for defense of the Australian continent, in two waves. After clearing their bomb racks at high altitude the attackers swooped down to 200 feet to rake Port Moresby with their guns.

The first report of the raid, relayed by the Australian radio, carried no estimate of damage or casualties.

This show of air power, within easy fighter range of Salamaua and Lae, across the jungles and mountainlands north of Port Moresby, followed the severely

REPULSED: Japs Driven Off In Air Battle Over Burma

(By International News Service)

MANDALAY — Vast Japanese aerial armadas severely battered a Royal Air Force airdrome in central Burma Saturday and yesterday, but were driven off by out-numbered pilots of the American Volunteer group and the Royal Air Force after furious fighting, an official communique revealed today.

The airport was said to have been used extensively by the AVG and the RAF as a base for attacks on Japanese airdromes and troop concentrations in Burma.

In the first attack, at least 80 Japanese bombers and fighters came over the airport in a desperate effort to blast it out of existance. Other waves of enemy planes came over later in the day.

As the out-numbered American and British pilots sought to make up for their lack of equipment with super-human flying, the cheering word came from New Delhi that substantial reinforcements of warplanes and pilots, destined for the Burma front, had arrived in India.

The Jap bombers were not able to accomplish the knockout blow they had planned, according to accounts of the terrific battle.

While several United Nations planes were missing, and only two Japanese raiders were claimed to have been definitely shot down, the raid was a failure, declared an official report. "Some damage and some casualties" resulted, said a

VICTORY: British Run Up Score In The Mediterranean

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—British submarines, striking with torpedoes and shellfire within sight of watchers on the coasts of Italy and her Albanian vassal state, have sunk two Italian submarines, two supply ships, six schooners and a troop-jammed motorship, the admiralty announced today.

The blows to Italy's sea lanes were hammered home at the approaches to the Strait of Messina between the southern tip of Italy and Sicily, under machine-gun fire from Italy's southeast coast, and under artillery fire from Albanian coastal batteries in the lower Adriatic.

The admiralty did not specify the elapsed time of these operations which flaunted Britain's naval power under the very nose of Mussolini.

Neither was there any mention of British losses.

The Italian submarines, both sunk in southern Italian waters, were identified by the admiralty as the new Ammiraglio Millo and one of the Argonauto class.

Batan Defenders Cheer MacArthur On

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The war department announced today American-Filipino troops in the Philippines had assured General Douglas MacArthur in a message that they would continue their defense of the islands with the same zeal and courage that they showed under MacArthur's personal command.

A communique said that the message, dispatched to MacArthur in Australia, expressed confidence that under his leadership of the United Nations forces in the Pacific the aggressor would be defeated.

Meanwhile, the embattled troops of Batan—the only men who have slapped Nippon's military "face" since Pearl Harbor—dug in deeper for the "consequences" of their refusal to consider the demand which the Japanese have made for immediate and unconditional surrender.

Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, the lean, hard-bitten successor to General MacArthur on Luzon island, refused to dignify the enemy surrender ultimatum with a reply, but there were signs that the demand might precede the long-expected Japanese offensive to end major resistance in the Philippines.

"No reply was necessary and none was made," the war department said, announcing the enemy demand for surrender, which fixed noon yesterday as the deadline for the capitulation unless Batan's defenders were prepared to "suffer the consequences."

Cripps Carries Proposal To India

NEW DELHI—(INS)—Sir Stafford Cripps, special British envoy to India, arrived in New Delhi today after a flight from Karachi.

Bearing with him the British government's latest proposal to India's national leaders, Sir Stafford arrived in the capital shortly after the Indian Nationalist congress party, meeting at Allahabad, indicated that nothing short of independence would satisfy party demands.

Defense Worker Cheats Death In Crossing Crash

COLUMBUS —(INS)—Providence, seemingly aware that war production must not be delayed, snatched Odel Bradford, 19-year-old riveter at the Curtiss-Wright airplane factory, from what appeared almost certain death before the wheels of a locomotive.

Driving to work, Bradford halted at a grade crossing to permit an eastbound train to pass. Then he drove onto the tracks, in the path of a westbound locomotive.

His car was dragged 400 feet, but Bradford stepped from the wreckage unhurt. Today he was at work on warplanes, as usual.

LET'S GO DOWN TOWN FOR BIG SEND-OFF PARTY

You Can Help Give 200 Boys a Cheery Farewell as They Leave For Camp.

fielders will respond to his appeal to come down town and see the boys off!

How right he is depends on all of you.

Don't let him down—don't let those 201 boys down.

They're not letting YOU down!

By leaps and bounds throughout the city today, Saltzgaber's idea was taking hold.

And this afternoon it began to appear that the occasion will really be something to remember.

There will be noise-makers and confetti. The City News announced it would distribute all the noise-makers it had in stock, or could lay a hand on. Members of the Lions club were scurrying around today buying up all the confetti to be had for distribution in the morning.

Most everybody has some sort of noise-maker kicking around the house, something left over from last Halloween, or New Year eve. Here's an occasion to put that noise-maker to work, for a really good purpose. And if you haven't got one, you can improvise one. Plenty of noise can be produced, you know, by banging on a dishpan.

Saltzgaber's committee proposed that factory whistles, sirens, bells and horns be turned on full steam at 8 a. m. That's the time the nine buses carrying the 201 young men toward Fort Hayes and Fort Thomas will leave the corner of Main street and Park avenue. The committee has requested a police escort for the bus procession as it heads out South Main, and for police to direct traffic at the square.

From 7:30 to 8, the boys will be going up to the three draft board offices to receive their induction papers and the gift provided for each one by the Soldiers-Citizens committee.

Those who have attended previous departures know that the occasion is generally on the tearful side as families, sweethearts and friends say their goodbyes.

The city can't shake hands with every individual leaving for service, but it can deliver a rousing farewell. And there's not a person in Mansfield or vicinity who doesn't have a personal reason to take part tomorrow morning. Everyone has a son, or a nephew, or a boy friend, in that group that's leaving tomorrow—or in the groups that have gone before or will leave in the future.

Aside from those personal reasons, there's that bigger reason. These are the young men who are leaving their families, their homes, their jobs—to tackle an enemy that delivers the low punch, that threatens the very foundations of America.

Of course there have been quite a few on hand every time a group left for camp under selective service. There are always the immediate families, the close friends, and the girl friends who some day will be an important part of the immediate families.

One of the regulars has been a gentleman who was a captain in the first war, who is prominent in draft board activities today. And when he waves goodbye to the boys crowding into buses on their way to duty, he must feel that he's sending along with them a fatherly hello and a handshake and a "God bless you" to his only son, who's been fighting with that dauntless band on Batan peninsula.

Perhaps the reason there hasn't been a larger crowd at past "goings-away" is that there hasn't been any organized effort to arrange a big send-off.

But now there is. Now it's up to Mansfield.

ASKS ANGLERS TO SAVE TAGS

Waters Urges Fishermen To Save Metal To Aid War effort.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— In an effort to conserve whatever metal it can for the war effort, state conservation commissioner Don Waters today urged all Ohio fishermen to save their metal fishing licenses.

By issuing new 1942 licenses to fit the old holders, the commissioner estimated that 100,000 license tags will be saved by reducing the number issued this year from 850,000 to 750,000.

Waters said the division plans to distribute only enough holders next year to supply persons who have not bought fishing licenses before.

YANKS HAPPY IN AUSTRALIA

soldiers leave," an Australian says. "You see, they are accustomed to less attention than your girls receive.

"They may not be hep to the latest jive, but the Americans will find they aren't a great deal different from the girls at home. They go to the movies, too, and know something of American life."

Among the first things the Yanks spotted on arrival in Australia were familiar hamburger stands and coffee shops, and restaurants with unrationed quantities of food.

The country is largely agricultural with a surplus of food. The troops face little chance of restricted rations.

Like the English and Americans, the Australians are a meat-eating people and the boys have all the steaks and chops they want—and can pay for.

For those who prefer a drink with a collar or a bead, the supply is plentiful, the bars spacious. Australian beer is a bit heavier than American brews and usually served warm. Those who know say they are excellent.

No hard liquors are sold legally after 6 p. m., although they can be bought through underground channels. In the winter season—which is our summer—rum is the preferred drink.

The American lads are likely to make their hosts' eyes pop with amazement over their capacity for beer. The records show the average American consumes almost twice as much beer as the average Australian.

TALL STORY OF FOUR-MILE FALL

This Flier Must Have Landed In An Extremely Deep Snowdrift.

NEW YORK—(INS)—One of the tallest stories of the war was on record today from Russia.

The parachute that didn't open has been turned back for a new one.

Red Star, Soviet army newspaper, reported that Lieut. Ivan Chisov, navigator of a Russian bomber, leaped from 23,000 feet—more than 4 miles, and landed safely in a snowdrift.

The account, cabled by CBS by its Moscow correspondent, said Chisov plummeted into an extremely deep snowdrift on the wall of a ravine, and skidded to the bottom. He suffered only shock and internal injuries. When he goes back to work he will get a new parachute.

city opened a $5,000 improvement program.

The pilots of the bomber were the guests of James R. Harrington, airport manager, at a luncheon at the airport barracks, and took off again shortly after 3 p. m.

Mansfield was warned of the unsatisfactory condition of its runways last fall when a program for the training of 28 South American fliers scheduled for Mansfield was transferred to an Illinois city, one-tenth the size of Mansfield.

The bomber was the second Army plane forced down at Mansfield during the past week. Major F. M. S. Miller, an air corps public relations officer, flying from Cleveland to Dayton, made an emergency landing in a field on the Ohio State Reformatory farm late Wednesday. He was also forced down by adverse weather conditions.

Although Army officials at Wright Field, Dayton, had planned to remove Major Miller's plane from the muddy field, it has not been moved as yet.

Members of the Mansfield squadron of the Civil Air Patrol, commanded by Dr. L. D. Bonar, have been standing guard over the ship, 24 hours a day. They will continue to maintain armed guards around the plane, according to Bonar, until Army officials arrive to remove it.

Traffic at the Mansfield airport will not be curtailed by the furrows in the runways, according to port authorities, but pilots will have to be careful to avoid the heavy ruts, especially when landing.

All this sounds very simple and fairly safe, and, to it all, is usually added the assertions that, with danger from great Rusisa in the north, the task of conquering vast China still incompleted in the west ith colossal India looming beyond and Japan's expansion over magnificent distances and our resistance to the south, Japan has spread her butter far too thin over too big a slice of bread—as Hitler may have done in Europe.

All this is true but in war almost nothing can be taken for granted. In a different way we have spread our butter pretty thin and have promised to spread it thinner.

Our South American friends and Allies, plus the two great fence-sitters, Chile and Argentina, have a tremendously long coastline to guard and a very minimum of modern troops and equipment with which to guard it. They are inexperienced in 20th century war.

Several of them, including principally Argentina, Chile and Brazil, have very large infiltrations of both Japanese and Germans. Both Axis powers have long had a great yearning for these markets as natural outlets for their products.

The formation or transportation, landing and supply of a very few divisions of Axis troops in one of these countries is by no means an impossibility. Especially in Chile. They could be a sinister threat to us.

There would be a considerable demand based on very plausible reasoning for us to extend our naval vigilance and our land, air and naval protection to wipe out any such force, and also to guard the whole long coast line of South America.

How much of that sort of thing could we do and still remain the "arsenal" of democracy, "carry the war to the enemy" wherever he may be from the Straits of Dover to the Straits of Malacca and guarantee the "four freedoms" to hundreds of millions of Chinese, Malay and Indian coolies?

CAR DEALERS STRUGGLE TO HOLD BUSINESS

Stagger Under Ration Plan as U. S. Reduces State's Auto Allotment.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS— The $250,000,000 new automobile business in Ohio is staggering under blows from the wartime rationing program, but the majority of dealers are sticking out their chins, still trying for what business there is, and hoping that the government will relieve them of their stocks of cars.

With their new cars tied up and eligible for sale only to a small group of persons whose work is essential to war purposes or public health or safety, the dealers have retrenched rapidly since the first of the year, cut down expenses, laid off many salesmen and dug in to weather the war.

Only 8,261 new passenger automobiles were allotted for sale in Ohio in March, April and May. Last year there were 256,034 new cars registered in the state; in 1940 there were 233,439. They averaged slightly under $1,000 each in price.

The salesmen's situation also indicates what has happened. With all automobile salesmen required to be licensed annually by April 1, only 1,392 had applied to the Bureau of Motor Vehicles through last Thursday, compared with 5,900 on the corresponding day a year ago, Registrar Cylon W. Wallace reported.

The total licensed last year was 8,500; this year's will be a fere 2,000, Wallace predicted.

Many salesmen have shifted to insurance and other work for which they are fitted and are doing well, said John Barton, executive secretary of the Columbus Automobile Trade Association, Inc. Real estate is a good field for men who can't deliver the cars they could sell, Barton added.

Barton reported that many dealers hoped for liberalization of rationing regulations to permit them to move more cars now "frozen" in salesrooms and storage buildings. One large manufacturer, General Motors, has offered to take new cars off their dealers' hands and permit them to liquidate their heavy investments.

Bicycles, electric appliances and other commodities are displayed in many salesrooms formerly devoted exclusively to automobiles; some dealers' repair shops have been expended in hopes of making up part of the loss in sales revenues.

Prison Farm Fugitive Caught 3 Days After Escape.

Only three days after he escaped, an inmate who walked away from the Osborne honor farm at Sandusky was returned to the Ohio State reformatory yesterday, Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke reported today.

The prisoner was Charles Campbell, 26, who entered the reformatory on Feb. 13, 1941, and later was assigned to the Osborne farm. He was sentenced from Montgomery county on a charge of assault to rape, and given a one-to-15-year term.

Campbell, who escaped last Thursday, was apprehended in Dayton.

President of Strike-Bound Railroad Declares U. S. Favors Strikers.

(By United Press)

PEORIA, Ill.—President George P. McNear, Jr., accused the government today of "favoring" strikers in its seizure of his 239-mile Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad, as approximately 100 workmen waited for union and government officials to arrange for their return to work.

McNear, remaining as president under authority of government officials who took over the railroad last night, said the freight line already was operating at "full service" and that "the president knew it."

J. W. Barriger, associate director of the office of defense transportation with a staff of eight assistants began operation of the railroad at the orders of President Roosevelt, after McNear had rejected the government's fifth request for arbitration of the 84-day-old strike.

It was the government's first seizure of corporation property since the war began, and the presidential order said government operation would continue until he determines it "no longer required for successful prosecution of the war."

West Coast Broadcasters Ordered Off Air Shortly Before Dawn.

LOS ANGELES —(U.P.)— Radio stations of the Los Angeles area were ordered off the air by the fourth interceptor command for 19 minutes shortly before dawn today.

There was no alert ordered for the civilian defense, the usual preliminary to a blackout. Stations left the air at 5:36 a. m. (PWT) and resumed broadcasting at 5:55 a. m.

The fourth interceptor command said the silence was ordered because of the presence of "unidentified objects" off the Southern California coast.

In lieu of the big Easter lily exhibit, the conservatory will demonstrate what can be done with a back yard war garden.

REMOVAL OF JAPS FROM WEST COAST AREA STARTED TODAY

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES—A caravan of cars and trucks leaves Pasadena today with the first large contingent of Japanese aliens and their American-born children to evacuate the strategic Pacific coast military zone under army orders.

In a move to forestall possible fifth column activity, approximately 1,000 evacuees assembled for the journey at dawn at Pasadena's Rose Bowl, scene of the annual New Year's day football classic in pre-war years. Scores of others left by train and bus. By nightfall, 1,500 are expected to reach Manzanar in the Owen's river valley, where the army has begun construction of a reception center.

All of the evacuees in the first group were men. They included cooks, bakers, carpenters, plumbers and other skilled workmen who volunteered to launch the enforced migration.

Removal of the Japanese to Owens valley begins an exodus eventually affecting 112,985 Japanese on the west coast. Of those 93,919 live in California. German and Italian aliens must move later.

Except for 166 Japanese workmen who preceded the caravan by bus Saturday, today's convoy was the first to head for the Manzanar center.

Lieut. Gen. John L. DeWitt, chief of the western defense command, estimated that the evacuation from the coastal area would be completed in four to six weeks. He said most of the early migrants would be volunteers, but that all would be moved, by force if necessary.

The Japanese were allowed to drive their own cars and carry belongings with them. The cars will be impounded by the government after the trip.

San Francisco federal agents, continuing their roundup of Japanese suspected of fifth column activity, arrested six believed to be members of the terroristic Black Dragon society yesterday.

Youths Involved In Shooting Face Judge Tomorrow.

Five Mansfield youths who were with Robert Borden, 16-year-old Senior high school pupil, when he was fatally shot last Wednesday morning near Lucas, have been ordered to appear before Judge Stuart H. Cramer in county juvenile court Tuesday morning to tell their story of the tragedy.

Prosecutor Harold Lutz said only one of the five youths, John Hergatt, 16, would be cited on a charge. He is accused of possessing firearms as a minor under 17 and firing a gun on or across a highway. The Hergatt boy admitted firing the rifle shot which struck the Borden youth in the neck. He said he was shooting at a chicken hawk.

Lutz learned Saturday that there were two more boys in the group than officers found at the scene of the shooting. He identified them today as William Graham and James Switzer, both of South Diamond street. They are scheduled to go to court with Hergatt, Fred Urschel, 16, and Norman Hildebrand, 17.

"Sure, I've flown before. Once with the stork, you know."

Joe Star, Mansfield bass fiddle player, was unintentionally but very definitely "framed" while playing at a dance job last weekend. He was plucking his "doghouse" in a manner nonchalant when a large window behind him accidentally swung open and being hinged at the bottom the window crashed down on Joe and his instrument. When other orchestra members turned to look they saw Joe standing in a pile of broken glass and tightly encircled by the window frame. His only injury was a slight scratch on the nose but he thinks it's quite possible he may have missed a few musical notes.

M. B. Mitchell, son of a former Mansfield teacher, recently was elected to city council in Seattle, Wash., finishing second in a field of six for a three-year term. Three were elected. Mitchell, who is editor of the Ballard Tribune, suburban newspaper at Seattle, is the son of L. A. Mitchell and the former Miss Etta G. Gilkison who taught here more than 50 years ago. Mitchell previously served two terms in the Washington state legislature.

A busy soldier doesn't have time to write letters to all his friends back home, Robert F. Dalton, Mansfield selectee, has decided, so he has worked out a plan that operates something on the order of the chain letter idea. Dalton, who is stationed at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., writes detailed letters to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Dalton, with the request that they show the letters to friends who have written to him at camp. He opens the letters with the salutation: "One and All." By that method a number of persons in Mansfield get an answer and it takes only one letter to do it. Young Dalton was at home Sunday for a visit with his parents.

It must have been a hungry burglar who broke into Stutzman's bakery on South Main street over the week-end. Police reported today that the bakery had been broken into but that the only things taken were some cookies from one of the front showcases. Lester R. Stutzman, proprietor, told officers that entrance was gained by ripping a screen off one of the windows at the rear of the bakery.

OFFICIALS ARE SUBPENAED BY NAVAL GROUP

Will Be Asked To Testify on 'Questions Relating to Government Contracts.'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The house naval committee turned the spotlight today on a Cleveland war plant "a year ahead of schedule in production," where all workers are called "associates" and the bonuses for employes are growing fatter.

The firm is Jack and Heintz, Inc., manufacturer of airplane starter motors and other equipment, five of whose officials were subpoenaed to testify on "questions relating to various aspects of the over $58,000,000 of government contracts that the company has been awarded."

The company made about $1,000,000 in profits last year on $10,000,000 worth of business and distributed $650,00 of the profits to its 800 "associates" in the form of bonuses, after putting aside $200,000 to build up reserves.

It is known in Cleveland as the plant where free meals are frequent, coffee is free at all times, a library of 10,000 recordings furnishes music, and everyone gets $37.50 a month in defense stamps, free dental care and other benefits.

Last Christmas every "associate"—from floor sweeper to executive—was given an 18-jewel wrist watch and a huge turkey.

There are 15,000 names on the waiting list at the employment office.

The boss is 53-year-old William S. Jack, who insists that everyone in the plant call him Bill. A former organizer for the AFL International Association of Machinists, he ran three other concerns, making such diversified items as Diesel engines and electric razors, before the formation of Jack and Heintz in 1940, with himself, his son Russell and Ralph Heintz, vice president in charge of engineering, as the three stockholders. All the workers belong to the union.

"We're a year ahead of schedule in production," Jack recently told an interviewer. "We're working two 12-hour shifts a day—by the men's own choice, but I'll lay you any kind of bet we have 20 per cent greater efficiency than any other plant in the country."

Jack asserts that profits of 10 to 20 per cent are not out of line, and that if the company wants to distribute 6 to 8 per cent among the employes, "that's our business and nobody else's."

As for the cost to the government, he says his company has reduced prices 20 per cent since it became a government supplier.

He cites as one reason why war production records are being broken the fact there are no time clocks.

Ohio College To Train Enlisted Men For U. S. Navy

RIO GRANDE — (U.P.) — Little Raccoon creek will be used to train men for the U. S. army.

Raccoon creek is a narrow stream located a mile from Rio Grande college. It is navigable to nothing larger than a motor boat.

Rio Grande college has been accepted for V-1 curriculum and will start training enlisted men for the navy April 27. The semester will end Aug. 8. President R. Lloyd Pobst of Rio Grande received notification of the acceptance from Randall Jacobs, chief of the bureau of navigation.

V-1 classification permits deferment of enlisted men for three semesters, at the end of which an examination to determine future status is given. Those qualified are allowed to stay one more semester in category V-5, naval aviation, for which Rio Grande college students would receive their seaplane flying experience on the Ohio river, 13 miles away, at Gallipolis.

Students who failed the comprehensive would go into active service as naval apprentices. Superior students would be classified as V-7, stay four years, and after special naval training elsewhere, enter the navy as ensigns, according to Pobst.

Cellophane will no longer be used in window envelopes—so the monthly bills must be identified in some other way.

Motorists are advised to keep their anti-freeze for use next winter—and they'll be glad to know that "next winter" is being confidently anticipated.

More Young Men Called To War

RICHLAND COUNTY'S largest contingent of selectees—more than two hundred young men—will leave tomorrow to enter army service. Already this vicinity is creditably represented in the nation's fighting forces and the presence of local boys serves to heighten interest in many faraway war zones, as well as in the training camps where hundreds of them are making ready for military duties.

Whatever can be done, in a community way, to brighten the departure of these young men from their home communities is being done and many friends will be anxious to continue this display of interest by writing to acquaintances in training camps, or assigned to some branch of service.

There will also be lonely times for members of the families of boys who have gone into service, or who are yet to be called, and indication of friendly interest and thoughtful consideration will be more than ordinarily appreciated during the coming weeks and months of uncertainty and sacrifice.

The young men who are going into military service, for the preservation of their country, are entering upon a great mission—which they recognize as such—and it is equally important that the work of those at home, whether directly or indirectly connected with the war effort, be carried forward with the same zeal, energy and determination that is being shown by actual fighting men—for it is the people back home who must produce the equipment and supplies necessary to win the war.

Unless every ounce of energy is expended in essential industrial and farm production, and in the transportation thereof—regardless of profits, wages and hours—the boys who are going to war will have a right to feel that they are not being backed up in the way they deserve.

Send them away with smiles and cheers—then do everything possible to speed the success of their mission.

'Automobile Graveyards' Shrinking

WHILE some cities report little diminution in the scrapheaps known as "automobile graveyards," the Mansfield area is showing considerable inroads being made on these community eyesores, which, in the main, are along much-traveled highways.

It has been difficult to give emphasis to the importance of contributing small bits of metal—safety razor blades, for instance—while hundreds of tons of scrapped motor vehicles are lying unused around every city in the country.

It may be that this is being handled as rapidly as possible, but to the layman it seems incredible that junk yards should not be cleared of accumulations of old metal before a cry of shortage is justified.

Much the same condition exists in the matter of waste paper, it being difficult to co-operate enthusiastically in saving used envelopes, and the like, while countless tons of high grade paper is being wasted by governmental departments, bureaus and adjuncts.

But, with calm confidence that order will eventually emerge from chaos—even in OCD—we are determined to go forward in lending all possible assistance toward winning the war—which includes full co-operation in all of the things that the government asks be done.

The Fine Art of Pleasing Customers

CHANGES in personnel, necessitated by calls to military service, will result in many inexperienced persons being employed as clerks in retail stores.

Lacking training for such work, some of these will fall into common errors of inattention to individual customers, lukewarmness in their work and failure to learn everything possible about the merchandise to be sold.

Some helpful hints for newcomers in the retail selling field are found in a bulletin issued by a large department store and a few of these are passed along for the benefit of new clerks—and possibly some older ones as well.

"Each of our customers is an individual. He or she, alone, is the party getting the service and doesn't care a hoot how many hundreds you wait on—so let's personalize each sale by being friendly.

"A smile costs nothing but creates much—so smile . . . it pays in customer satisfaction."

"Good will is the disposition of a pleased customer to return to the place where she has been well treated—but one tactless remark, one glaring error, one display of indifference, and a customer may walk out of the store and never return."

Example of slatternly approach is given in a mention of the ease with which the cordial and satisfactory formula, "May I help you"?, can deteriorate into such annoying canine jargon as: "M' I yelp you"?, "M' yelp you"? to a final mumbled "Yelp ya"?

Salesmanship does not "come naturally"—its principles must be learned, its fundamental requirements understood and its technique studied by everyone who aspires to become more than a mere wrapper-upper and change-maker in a store.

They'll Be 'War Bonds' Soon

NOT THAT it matters greatly what they're called, but it's rather interesting to note that as soon as present printed stocks of Defense bonds have been disposed of, these government securities will be designated "War bonds"—which better fits the present situation.

The present issue of bonds was planned and carried through while emphasis was on "defense," rather than war, and while isolationist influence was still being felt in some parts of the country.

It would be foolish to waste the valuable paper on which millions of Defense bonds have been printed and the more appropriately named bonds may be expected around July 1, it is announced.

A New Jersey cashier has admitted that in 22 years he embezzled $309,000 which he played on the horses—thus at least gaining admiration for persistence.

Hoarding Becomes Vicious Circle

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

LEON HENDERSON, national price fixer, is depending largely upon the American housewife to prevent day-by-day living costs from getting beyond control. He keeps a sharp eye upon manufacturers and wholesalers but doesn't interefere much with retail shopkeepers whose sales are mainly to customers of the feminine sex.

Of course, a retailer can't charge less than he has to pay for the merchandise on his shelves. That's why it is necessary to see that he's able to get it at reasonable figures. Doing so is the Office of Price Administration's funeral. A wholesaler doesn't come into direct contact with actual consumerdom, so that there's nobody to dictate to him unless some overhead authority, like the OPA attends to his case. A retailer, though, gets his hollers from right across the counter.

That is, he does if his patronage is principally from the distaff side of the public that foots the bills.

Price Fixer Henderson isn't so sure about men. He rather thinks the average gets a habit of trading at some particular clothier's or haberdasher's, heads in there when there's something he wants and digs up whatever he's asked for, yowling perhaps, but handing over the dough. Maybe retailers of masculine supplies require a good bit of supervision.

Women, however, are rated as far harder boiled. They shop around. The place that gives 'em the best and most on the best financial terms catches their business. Retailers who cater to 'em naturally compete for it. Consequently they're automatically as moderate as they can be, except at an outright loss. The wholesalers that THEY buy from have to be regulated, but, so far as concerns any profiteering of their own, the ladies nip that in the bud, with small assistance from the OPA.

There's one little consideration that Fixer Henderson likes to call to the fair sex's attention.

Suppose a housewife, foreseeing, a shortage of, say, canned goods, decides to lay in a big stock of 'em. The probabilities are that other housewives foresee and do the same thing. The result is a market shortage, due to all these stored-up stocks. When there's a shortage it's a near-impossibility to prevent prices from soaring. Even if Fixer Henderson slaps an artificial ceiling over 'em, there's bound to be considerable bootleg selling at fancy prices. Consumerdom either pays 'em or goes without the especial stuff.

Well, the thrifty housewife, who has laid in what she deemed an adequate supply, finally runs shy. Her hoard can't last forever, with her family chewing away at it ad libitum.

Thereupon she goes out to buy more, and immediately discovers that the price has gone up like fury, owing to a shortage that she herself helped to create.

The moral, Fixer Henderson warns, is, "Don't hoard, or it's pretty certain to react." It's one of those vicious circles that we hear so much about.

Just how price fixing is going to pan out in the long run, if the war strings along indefinitely, is a problem for anyone. Leon Henderson probably included.

Man About Manhattan

Sub War In 1776

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Waterfront scene: A British battleship is lying off Governor's island, in New York harbor. British soldiers on the island can see the ship quite plainly. A few miles away, an American submarine is taking on a torpedo. Its mission is to sink the British battleship. The attempt is made in the dead of night, fails.

A movie? No. A sham battle? A practice maneuver?

Believe me, the submarine tried its best to sink this British battleship, and that it failed has been set down as "poor management on the part of the submarine" rather than to alertness on the part of the battleship.

All this happened during the Revolutionary war. You can stand on the waterfront today and see quite plainly the position where the battleship lay. This was HMS Eagle, 50 guns. Washington still held Manhattan, but the British were on Long Island. British soldiers witnessed part of the action, and they are unquestionably the first troops on record to witness the attack by submarine of a battleship.

WHAT about this submarine? It was invented by David Bushnell. He called it The Turtle. Contemporaries described it as looking like a clam wearing a hat. It had a cork nose and a crude propeller that was cranked by hand. Its hull was scraped out of oak, and it had a glass window which permitted enough light to read by in three fathoms of water.

It was in the night hours of August 17, 1776, that Sergeant Ezra Lee, who had been a classmate of Nathan Hale at Yale made his historic attempt. A whaleboat towed the sub within striking distance of the Eagle, and Lee, who was all the crew there was, went aboard. He could submerge because of ballast and handpumps which drove the water out of a special compartment.

Unobserved, he got to the Eagle and submerged. But somehow he couldn't get his torpedo into position. His torpedo was hewn out of oak. It weighed about 150 lbs. and was filled with black powder and primed with a flint "that couldn't miss-fire."

AFTER awhile Lee had to rise to the surface, rearrange his "torpedo," and submerge again. It is claimed the copper plating of the Eagle's belly thwarted his efforts. Again Lee brought his crude craft to the surface. Day was breaking. British soldiers, attracted by so odd a sight, had gathered on shore and were observing him curiously. Lee wisely concluded that the jig was up, and he beat a hasty retreat, pausing meanwhile to loose his torpedo at a raft of British soldiers who had put out from shore to observe him more closely. The "load" missed its target, and exploded harmlessly in the water.

When Washington heard of Lee's attempt he thought it was "a work of genius."

Today the ferries ply over the exact spot where the Eagle lay, unsuspecting of the disaster that came so close to her, and millions of passengers have gazed at the scene without realizing that here sea-power passed through a historic phase.

This Explains It.

Why the Failure On Rubber?

As soon as it became apparent in December that the rubber supply from the East Indies was likely to be cut off, Jesse Jones got busy on financing plants to manufacture synthetic rubber. Early in January he was making reassuring statements about the supply that would be rolling out of these plants by the end of this year. By 1943 the problem was to be virtually solved.

Then came a blackout on news. The location and progress of the new plants were not to be revealed. They were military secrets. But the public was given to understand that work was going forward.

Now inquiry at the offices of the Defense Plant corporation in charge of the synthetic rubber program runs into the usual "military secrets" evasion. But the spokesman finally admits that the plan is not beyond the blue-print stage.

In other words, the Jesse Jones optimistic statements prove to have been merely Jesse Jones dreams. Military secrecy has been made a cloak for fumbling and failure.—Kansas City Times.

FBI Probing Quick Transmission Of U. S. Information To Berlin

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Ever since he flew the Atlantic one fateful day in 1927, Charles A. Lindbergh has been looking for privacy and solitude. For years he has complained about the crowds that turned to look at him in the streets, the stenographers that thronged government office corridors when he passed, the autograph hunters that surrounded him when he made a speech.

For years also he went to more extreme lengths than any other celebrity—even Greta Garbo—to be alone. He fled to England, later took a house on an island in the English channel, was a virtual exile in Europe.

But this week in Washington a remarkable thing happened. In the lobby of the Hotel Carlton, one of the most popular hotels in Washington, sat Charles A. Lindbergh. For a time he sat on a sofa, then paced up and down the lobby floor.

But though people obviously recognized him, no one stopped to talk, no one asked for an autograph, no one even spoke to him.

For almost the first time since 1927, Lindbergh was in public, but very much alone.

Nazi News Speeded.

HERE is how rapidly news is getting back to Berlin from the very capitol of the United States.

A week or so ago Washington had a blackout; and a few days before a group of air wardens squabbled with Civil Defense and resigned.

Six hours after this happened, the Berlin radio was broadcasting the news as an indication of confusion among the American people and lack of defense in the heart of their capital.

The FBI has been working on these leaks for some time. Suspected are certain foreign legations friendly to the Axis.

Note—There is good reason to believe that Axis agents have received special instructions to report—in addition to outright military information—anything which indicates disunity inside the United States and the weakening of the Roosevelt administration. What they are looking for are signs similar to those inside France in the spring of 1940.

More RFC Stalling.

AFTER the widespread denunciations to which it has been subjected, it might be expected that Jesse Jones' RFC would lean over backward to do everything in its power to facilitate the war program. It isn't.

Despite its blasting in the press, Jesse Jones' RFC still is adhering to its old stalling and penny-pinching policies. Here's the latest case of obstructionism:

To ensure an adequate supply of coal for consumers next winter, when railroads will be over-burdened, Howard A. Gray, acting solid fuels director, and Luther Harr, bituminous coal consumers counsel, launched a campaign to have more coal placed with dealers during the spring months, when the railroads will be able to handle it.

However, two hitches snarled this far-sighted plan: (1) obtaining lower summer prices from mine operators to induce consumers to lay in their stocks early, (2) financing the coal dealers.

Gray and Harr eliminated the first obstacle by persuading the operators to sell at summer prices for stock-pile purposes. Then Gray and Harr went to Jesse Jones to get RFC help on the credit problem; for few dealers have the funds to buy large coal reserves.

Jones promised to co-operate and several RFC officials were assigned to work out a financing plan with Harr and Gray.

After several weeks of conferring a plan was formulated, under which the RFC would guarantee bank loans to coal dealers for building up stock-piles. The plan was sent to the RFC board, controlled by Jones. And that's the last that has been heard of it.

As this is written ten days have gone by, and the RFC is still sitting on the plan—approved by its own experts. Meanwhile precious time is being lost and the stage is being set for another shortage.

Doctor for Argentina.

A YOUNG MAN named Jorge Ortiz has come to the United States on one of the strangest errands in the history of politics. Son of the president of Argentina, he is seeking a means to restore his father to the presidency.

This sounds like a paradox but his father, Roberto Ortiz, is president in name only. Failing eyesight prevents him from being active, and the country is run by the reactionary vice president, Ramon Castillo, who is bent on Argentine isolation.

If young Jorge Ortiz can find a physician capable of restoring his father's sight, that liberal leader might return to power and place Argentina alongside the U. S. A. 100%.

Waiting Won't Win.

HERE is some inside diplomatic history about the French island of Madagascar, unpalatable, but true.

One year ago, the British proposed blockading and occupying this island, which lies athwart the trade routes of the Indian ocean, controls shipping to Suez, India, Australia. With an ample navy in the Indian ocean, the British easily could have taken over.

However, our state department advised to the contrary. Secretary Hull seemed to think seizure of Madagascar would throw Vichy more into the hands of Hitler. So the British laid off.

Instead they sent shiploads of food from nearby South Africa to feed the French inhabitants, following the state department's theory of making friends through food. This undoubtedly had its effect upon the people of Madagascar who, like the people of France, are friendly to the Allies.

However, Vichy sent a new pro-Axis governor to Madagascar, and he, not the people, runs the show. More recently Vichy has sent three warships, including a submarine tender, to Madagascar, which means that it is probably going to become an anti-Allied submarine base.

Today, of course, the British are much weaker in the Indian ocean. They face enemies from the Southwest Pacific and eastern India. So it will not be so easy to face a showdown with French warships on another side—Madagascar.

Health And Diet

Book Reveals Glamour Secrets.

—By DR. CLENDENING

TERRY HUNT, Hollywood's famous conditioner of stage stars and screen celebrities, has written "Design for Glamour," a little book which promises to make you glamorous in a few easy lessons.

I am not sure that I feel as entirely confident as the author seems to that this can be accomplished. Glamour is essentially good health, and certainly to be glamorous you have to be healthy, but not all healthy people are glamorous. Mr. Hunt's rules for health are sound enough and you may want to try out some of the less usual ones.

He has a chapter on "Eating" in which he gives a four-day reducing diet. The first day is as follows:

Lunch: Broiled steak, trimmed; lettuce salad, with tomatoes, chicory and celery; one raw apple.

Dinner: Two soft or hardboiled eggs; string beans (medium portion); one-half grapefruit.

Breakfast is not mentioned, you are not supposed to eat breakfast on any reducing day.

There is a chapter on "The Complexion of Glamour," others on "Beautiful Hands and Feet," "Hair Care," and several pages of exercises with good illustrations.

Normalizing Exercises.

I believe the normalizing exercises, as Mr. Hunt names them, are just as good as any bedroom exercises devised by anybody.

He gives in one chapter "Fifty Beauty Hints" from which I select the following:

"If your feet perspire, a dash of deodorant powder in your shoes is a touch you will do well to remember.

"Polish up your elbows once a week with a mixture made of oatmeal and cleansing cream, making certain that the resultant product is still rough enough to create friction. This will whiten and soften them beautifully.

"Does cold weather cause your legs to become rough and mottled? A solution of castor oil in alcohol will do much to remedy this defect.

"Epsom salts or baking soda in your bath before going out is a real pick-me-up. Use it and rid yourself of that dreary feeling.

Fruits and Vegetables.

"For reducing weight, see that about 50 per cent of your food consists of raw fruits and vegetables.

"Water is good for your system—drink at least two quarts daily.

"Don't gorge food — always leave the table not quite full.

"See a chiropodist for all serious foot ailments, and don't cut corns or bunions with a razor, for the resultant infection might cost you your life.

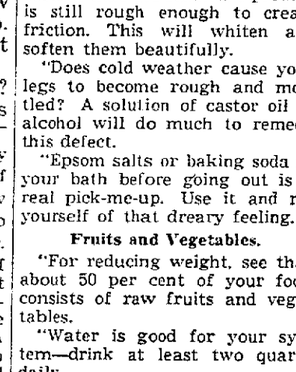
"Walk at least an hour every day. It improves our circulation, tones up your sluggish system, and gives you a better appetite.

"Regulate your diet, substituting laxative fruits for rough cathartics, for these have only a temporary value and injure the membranous lining of the intestines."

Daily Bible Thought

And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors. — Matt. 6:12.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT



"But I only want to park about five minutes, officer . . . Surely, you won't let anyone start a fire in that short time!"

Electric power will be rationed for homes and offices.

You can't count on our five years' supply of rye and bourbon whisky—the prohibition forces are pressing the government to redistill this surplus into industrial alcohol.

You are silly to hoard, for your advantage will only be momentary. Everybody will be in the same boat in the end.

The Allied victory program means that your total income for things to eat and wear will be less than the total available at the bottom of the depression.

Keep existing mechanical equipment—automobiles, refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, electric stoves, oil burners, etc., in operation through proper care. Don't try war gardening if you live in the city; you'll probably only waste seeds. Leave it to the suburbanites and country people.

Keep healthy, because your doctor will probably have gone to war. Give children sugar-coated carrots instead of candy.

The single, most effective thing you can do to avoid inflation is to buy defense bonds.

You can't afford the luxury of pessimism and rumor-mongering.

Prepare for More Restrictions

WE HAVE begun, but only just begun, to feel the effects of this war in our daily lives. Within a year, perhaps within six months, a complete transformation will have been worked, in the opinion of Marquis Childs, in "This Is Your War," (Atlantic Monthly Press).

Tires, golf balls, sugar, tea, spices, etc., you already know about. Among the other things you will soon be able to get only with a ration card, if at all: woolen goods, cotton duck, cod liver oil, radio tubes, refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, rum, not to mention all the consumer goods hit by metal shortages.

LAUNCH FINGER PRINT PROGRAM

Records of Galion Children To Go To Identification Files In Washington.

GALION—As a part of the national defense effort, a program for finger printing all local school children began today at the North school. These prints will be sent to Washington to be filed for civilian identification purposes within the Bureau of Personal Identification.

Merle Gow, local police officer who is in charge of the work, said today such prints are of inestimable value not only in a time of national emergency, but also in case of accident, amnesia victims, and disappearances. He noted that in England today all men, women, and children have been fingerprinted by the government.

Gow carried on his work through the use of a portable print board which held two prints. He estimated that it would take approximately two weeks to complete the program in all of the schools in the city.

A personal identification form will be sent to all parents to fill out and after all the prints are complete they will be classified and sent to Washington. No copies will be kept in Galion.

Gow emphasized the fact that the personal identification bureau in Washington is an entirely separate department from the criminal identification bureau. Identification files are never checked against the criminal files.

At the present time there are over 11,000,000 civilian prints on file in Washington and many of these are school children. Several schools in Ohio have already taken advantage of the opportunity to establish the only positive means of identification for their students. Shelby schools inaugurated the program over four years ago.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

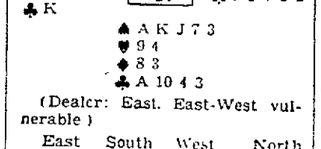
"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T BE TOO PROUD

Seldom does it pay the better card player to push the bidding in an unnatural way so as to make himself the declarer instead of his slightly less skillful partner. In all close questions, where he has a choice of two different bids, either of which appears sound, it may be well for him to strain in favor of the one which gives him the card-playing job to do. But purposely getting into a definitely wrong contract means he is asking himself to perform miracles. His partner generally will do better at the correct contract.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1. Pass	1 ♠	Dbl	Pass
2 ♥	2 ♠	3 ♥	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠
2. Pass	1 ♠	Dbl	Pass
2 ♥	2 ♠	3 ♥	3 NT

What do you think of that North player at the second table, who bid 3-No Trumps instead of supporting his partner's rebid spades? He did it because he thought all of the other suits would be stopped at least once, and he could run a long spade suit—or at least so he said after the deal. Actually, every listener reckoned he did it because he thought he could play hands better than South.

A heart was led, the 2, knocking out the A. He ran four spades, landing in the dummy, then led the club Q and let it ride, losing to the K. Hearts and diamonds then put him down four tricks. Of course, if he had been clairvoyant or reckoned that the double placed the club K with West, he might have dropped it with the A and made his contract plus an extra trick. But who would do that?

At table 1, where 4-Spades got played, the contract was made without any need for clairvoyancy. There the diamond K was led, next the A and 4 to the Q, which he ruffed. Three high spades gave the count of that suit, making it sure West had only one or two clubs, surely including the K, due to the double. So he played to drop it and did. Hence he could discard dummy's losing heart on the fourth club, ruff his own heart and make an extra trick. Even if he had finessed the clubs to the K, he still would have made the contract. Usually the correct contract pays dividends, no matter who plays it.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Please, Missis Graham," Gus entreated "don't tell him that! You don't know what a devil driver he is. And I told your father I'd be responsible for you."

He had difficulty in getting the words out, for the driver patently was doing his level best to live up to the reputation Gus gave him.

The big armored car sped along the narrow, twisting road as if it were a light racer, and I found myself digging my fingers into the cushions and bracing my feet and back, in an effort to keep myself reasonably erect.

"You see!" Gus nodded his head vigorously toward the driver, as he put this last argument. But I smiled disarmingly and spoke quickly, and I hoped loudly enough to reach the driver's ears.

Madge Praises Driver.

"I see that he's doing a marvelous job of driving," I said. "And that's what I need. I simply must get to Warren and find out the best way to get to Thunder mountain, before the people in that other car have a chance to get there. And again I tell you, Gus, that I will take the full responsibility for this. I will tell my father when I see him again how hard you tried to keep the speed down, and how I overruled you."

"Okay," Gus answered, but in a mournful tone which so strongly implied a doubt that I ever would see my father again, that I could hardly keep my risibles in order.

I saw Bill lean toward the driver and knew he was listening to some order or suggestion, although I could not hear a word. But the next second Bill turned back to us.

The Sky the Limit.

"Joe says we're almost through this road now. He's slowing up for this corner, where the cars come up the other way, and he'll have to cut it down a bit for the bridge, too, and a couple of blocks in New Milford. Then we'll be on Route 25, and all our troubles will be over. You see, he has a card in his pocket your father gave him, that will fix things with any traffic cop, and he says to tell you the sky will be the limit."

I saw Gus wince, and knew the faithful fellow was torn with fear, not for himself, for he is as brave and reckless of danger as any other of my father's men, but for my safety, because that had been entrusted to him by the "Chief."

There was nothing more I could do to reassure him, however. All my mental power was fused into the desire to get to Professor Diswell's home ahead of the other speeding armored car. But I knew that the driver, through Bill, was waiting for an answer from me, and I gave it.

"That is wonderful news," I said, and I saw Bill relay my words to the driver.

Slowed by the Traffic.

"There's more traffic here than there is in New York," Gus growled, as we drove next through several blocks crowded with moving or parked cars. Then, after turning a corner, we emerged on a broad concrete road marked 25, and Gus heaved a gusty sigh of relief.

"At least we'll get a chance for our white alley now," he said. Nobody spoke again until several miles further on.

"Well have to slack up a bit through here," Bill said apologetically. "It's the village of New Preston, and there ain't much room. But in just a minute or two he can let her out again."

"Anything he does is all right we me," I told Bill.

"Okay," he said. "We'll get there a good bit ahead."

No Time for Beauty.

All the beauty - lover in me longed to ask him to slow down, for New Preston, with its old houses strung along a narrow, winding road, dipping to a mountain stream with a sizable waterfall on one side and skirting a mountain on the other, was one of the most picturesque old hamlets—more Old England than New—that I ever had seen.

But we were out of it and skirting the shore of a beautiful mountain lake, framed in the first tender green of the spring, before I had a chance to speak even if I had been so weak as to yield to my inclination.

"That's Lake Waramaug" Bill informed us, "and we'll be in Warren in less than ten minutes."

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

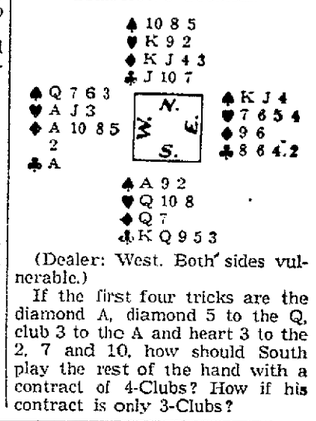
For Tuesday, March 24.

The presage for a lively, enterprising and successful day is shown in this day's astral chart. There is every possibility of the reaching of important goals in all kinds of ambitions and aspirations, but particularly where the recognition, preferment and good graces of the public are involved. This "happy ending" however depends upon the exercise of complete discretion and much business acumen, since there may be menace of trickery, intrigue and underhand doings to be cleverly swept aside. Also shun caustic and bitter words.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the threshold of a year of great opportunity for attaining major objectives, with high aims finding scope and expansion and with the promise of public good opinion as well as substantial cooperation. However there is possibly an undercover situation of fraud, treachery, and sinister attack, which must be averted or sagaciously dealt with by shrewd measures rather than quarrels, bitter and sarcastic speech or writings.

A child born on this day should be talented, industrious, and ambitious, reaching an important position in public places and popularity, but also subject to double-dealing, which may be provoked by its own erratic or unfriendly acts or speech.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

If the first four tricks are the diamond A, diamond 5 to the Q, club 3 to the A and heart 3 to the 2, 7 and 10, how should South play the rest of the hand with a contract of 4-Clubs? How if his contract is only 3-Clubs?

KINGS ROW + + + + +

By Henry Bellamann

(Copyright, 1942.)

THE STORY: Schoolmates in smalltown Kings Row are Parris Mitchell, who adores his French grandmother, Madame von Eln; pretty Renee, daughter of von Eln estate overseer; "all boy" Drake McHugh; tomboy Randy Monaghan; beautiful Cassandra Tower, who plans a party. Other characters: prodigy Vera Lichinsky — she and Parris study music with Herr Berdorff; Anna, Madame's devoted maid.

CHAPTER III

At the northern end of Union street stood Thurston St. George's old brick house. Thurston St. George was very old and very rich. He owned innumerable acres of land and was greatly respected.

At the western extremity of Federal street, Aberdeen college lifted its pillared portico and looked straight across the town to the insane asylum whose white galleries and many-windowed facades gleamed through the trees three-quarters of a mile away.

These were social boundaries. Every step away from these clearly marked precincts took one step downward in the well-defined and perfectly understood social order of Kings Row.

The St. Georges, with the Sannes, the Curleys, the Gordons, and the Skeffingtons, made up a strong and influential social stronghold. They were sometimes referred to irreverently by lesser people as the "Big Five."

Young Hart Sansome was the mayor. Lucius Curley was president of the Burton County Bank, and Dr. Gordon was the town's leading physician.

Col. Isaac Skeffington was a lawyer—"the best defense lawyer in the state." Everyone knew Ike Skeffington, most people liked him, and a good many were genuinely afraid of his caustic tongue. He was a tall, gaunt man with a wiry red beard that spread its tendrils to his lowest vest button.

He wore a frock coat the year round and, save in the hottest weather, a tall silk hat. A black smoke-stained spot marked the location of his mouth. Miles Jackson, the editor of the Gazette, said that wasn't due to smoke but to the colonel's brimstone vocabulary, which had tinged his whiskers brown.

Skeffington walked through his vegetable garden one morning, and came out on the sidewalk. He stopped and took off his tall hat with a near flourish.

"Good morning, Marie, good morning, ma'am. How are you this fine morning?"

A basket phaeton, its cream-colored fringes swaying to the trot of a small plump horse, came to a halt. Madame von Eln greeted the colonel cordially. He replied at Parris.

"How are you, sonny?"

"Very well, sir, thank you, Colonel Skeffington."

"Fine boy you're raising, Madame. He's got manners. What are you going to make out of him?"

"Well, he wants to be a doctor."

"Doctor? Doctor, hey! What's my boy?"

"I think I'd like it—sir."

"Nonsense. Working around stinking pills and stuff. Have him set up in the middle of the week and go out to Godforsaken places because some old fool's got a bellyache."

Madame laughed aloud. "It's a good profession, Isaac."

"Stuff! Make him a lawyer. He ought to be a smart one. You're smart, his daddy was smart, and his grandaddy Mitchell was smart."

The old lawyer walked slowly up Walnut street. His great beard flashed and sparkled in the sun, and the clouds of smoke from his cigar gave him the appearance of a walking conflagration.

In the middle of the next block he squinted narrowly at a dingy house set in the midst of tangled shrubbery and swarming vines.

A girl with copper-colored curls was standing at the decrepit gate.

The colonel bowed gravely. "Good morning, sissy."

She looked at him without smiling. After a moment's hesitation she replied, "My name is Cassandra."

"Oh, ho! Is that so? You are Dr. Tower's little girl?"

"Yes. Yes—sir." She spoke with a certain reluctance, and Colonel Skeffington's small brown eyes twinkled.

"Fine crop of curly hair you've got, miss, fine color—like mine." He removed his hat and shook his long straight locks. "Redheads have got spunk and character. Don't you ever forget it."

She smiled a little—a wan, uncertain smile.

Dr. Tower came out on the front porch as Colonel Skeffington walked away.

"Cassandra!"

"Yes, sir."

"Come in the house."

The child hurried back to the house. Her father stood waiting until she came in, then closed the door.

Dr. Alexander Q. Tower had lived in Kings Row for eight years. No one was quite sure where he had come from. Such arrivals were few in Kings Row professional ranks. Usually, if a new doctor or lawyer moved in, it was only after looking over the field and consulting with the banks and business men. Dr. Tower had settled here without any preliminaries. His wife and 5-year-old daughter arrived a few weeks later.

A few women called. They found Mrs. Tower a quiet, well-bred lady, but singularly uncommunicative. Mrs. Tower returned none of the calls and no further advances were made by the town.

So far as anyone knew, Dr. Tower had never had a patient. After a while the office rooms remained shuttered, and Dr. Tower was seen less and less frequently. He sent a Negro boy for his mail, and he was known to order a great many books through Brighton's Bookstore. Strange books, too, some of them in French and German.

It was said on the authority of Lucius Curley, the banker, that Dr. Tower was "well fixed"—the regulation phrase describing anyone of ample means. It was also known that he drew regular drafts on a bank in Philadelphia.

Everyone heard that he had fitted up a long room at the back of the house as a sort of laboratory. Bottles and curious apparatus and hundreds of books, it was said. But there was no guessing what he might be studying or working at. "Making experiments," people said, and let it go at that.

Dr. Tower was the town mystery, and however little ground there was for speculation, there was never any lack of whispered wonder and comment.

For several years now, Mrs. Tower could be seen every day, sitting inside her living room window. Colonel Skeffington often said that Mrs. Tower looked as if she were afraid. "She's listening for something," he remarked to his friend, Miles Jackson. "If that woman doesn't end up in the lunatic asylum over there, I'll be surprised . . . I wonder what that 'Q' in his name stands for."

Several days after Cassandra had mentioned her party to Parris, some 35 children received invitations.

Louise Gordon showed her invitation to her mother. Louise was the only child of Dr. Henry Gordon. Mrs. Gordon was a social power.

"I think I would prefer you didn't go," she said.

"Oh, but Mother—all—everybody's going. She sent out lots and lots of invitations. I do want to go."

Mrs. Gordon smiled a peculiar smile. "Why don't you have a party of your own?"

"Honestly? Could I? But I want to go to Cassandra's party, too. Why can't I? Then I could invite her."

"You could have your party at the same time," Mrs. Gordon suggested.

"You mean Saturday afternoon? But everybody's going to Cassandra's."

"Oh, I dare say there will be a lot of children who won't be going. You can find out. Suppose you use your father's telephone."

All of that week there was much buzzing on the playground about the two parties. Girls whispered together in little groups and boys asked each other self-consciously, "Which party are you goin' to?" It was somehow understood that a kind of rivalry lay behind the important question.

Louise Gordon was busy with her lists. She was certain of some 15 or so of Cassandra's guests. Her mother had undertaken to extend some of the invitations in her behalf. She had suggested more than once during the course of her chats with parents how desirable it really was to have normal, healthy children meet and enjoy themselves under cheerful and normal conditions. "Conditions we fully understand, you know."

Louise spoke to Parris the first day after her mother's decision. "I want you to come to my party, Parris. Saturday. We're going to have lots of fun."

"I can't, Louise. I told Cassandra I'd come to her house."

"I don't think that makes any difference if you really want to go somewhere."

Parris stared uncomprehendingly. It was clear that Louise hadn't heard what he had said. He began all over again.

"But, Louise, I got Cassandra's invitation first, and I cept—cept—I accepted it. Anyhow she asked me before—"

Louise interrupted him with a toss of her head that sent her two brown plaits flying. "Oh, well, if you don't want to come, it's all right, of course."

Cassandra Tower gave no sign. Seemingly she was unaware of the unwonted excitement. By Friday it was apparent that Louise had gained some valuable desertions.

Opinion and inclination had been swaying for two or three days. Boys had begun to notice Cassandra more and more, and this was the first chance they had had to see her at home. But gradually it seemed indeed that everybody was going to Louise's.

There were only five guests in the Tower parlor when Parris arrived. They did not represent "leading families," but neither Cassandra nor Parris knew that. Cassandra looked very pretty in a much-ruffled white dress, but she seemed bewildered.

"I don't know why everybody's so late," she said to Parris. "I invited ever and ever so many."

"Oh, well," he said casually, "you know how awful busy everybody is on Saturdays. Come on, let's play something. What do you want to play, Cassie?"

The party was a failure. Only one more guest came — Pearl Houston who lived up on Berry stret. Parris remembered that someone said the Houstons were not very nice — Mr. Houston worked in a dairy—but he didn't know about that.

He saw Dr. and Mrs. Tower talking quietly together. Dr. Tower was speaking very rapidly and Mrs. Tower said "sh-h" when Parris came into the hall. He repeated polite party speeches to them, and Dr. Tower bowed gravely. Mrs. Tower smiled.

"Thank you," she said gently in response to his formality. "I hope you'll come again."

"I certainly will," he said heartily. "If—if I may," he added.

Cassandra looked cross by this time. She was almost snappy when he said goodby.

Parris decided that Louise had been very mean to have this party the same day as Cassandra's. He believed she must have done it "on purpose."

At the end of the next week the school principal received a note from Dr. Tower saying that he was withdrawing Cassandra from school. "I shall henceforth undertake my daughter's education myself," it concluded.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

It would seem that right now, with organized baseball taking a vacation in Mansfield, would be the most opportune time for reorganizing Mansfield's once fine industrial baseball league.

But the times and the customs don't jibe. There aren't enough baseball players left in town to form a league, even if the industries were interested in forming such a circuit, and I haven't discovered that the industries are interested.

Years of softball and the swing to golf have depleted the once large ranks of Mansfield baseball players, and the few who are left are marching off to war. Liberty Parks, only adult baseball team playing a regular schedule last summer, may have difficulty putting a team on the field this year. Some of their stars are among the marching men.

And the marching men may disrupt the city's softball leagues this summer, just when plans were being made for more and bigger leagues.

Quizzed on whether they'll back a team again this summer, the response of most sponsors has been: "If I can get enough players together."

How am I going to fill this column this summer? Oh, I know Same old stuff, hunh?

Something like this:
"Oh he's 1-A in the army,
"And he's A-1 sauce in my heart."
This little ditty comes to you from drafty T-1451. (That's me.)

Biggest drawback to a possible revival of industrial league baseball still isn't lack of interest by industries, or lack of ball players, but lack of baseball diamonds.

Daylight saving would give the boys plenty of time to play this summer, but where they'd play is the question. Liberty park seems to be the only spot right now

The fair board might consider it worth while to keep the fairground diamond in playing condition, but it certainly wouldn't pay an outside group to take over that job. And with that diamond abandoned, I doubt if there will be any exhibition games by outside teams here this summer.

GETS BREAKS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP) Maybe it's to compensate for all those 1941 injuries but Manager Billy Southworth of the St. Louis Cardinals can't turn around this spring without bumping into good luck. Latest item is the showing of rookie Outfielder Erwin Dusak at third base. "I've never seen anybody play better third base and I have watched Pie Traynor," says Lon Warneke, the lean pitcher.

North Called Favorite

Canton Lehman Quintet May Spring Upset.

By JAMES EMERSON.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)— Three powerhouse outfits and one dangerous darkhorse were poised today for the final dash to the Class A Schoolboy Basketball championship of Ohio as the Class B crown nestled securely on the head of a well-coached, aggressive team from Somerset in Perry county.

Representatives of Xenia Central, Toledo Central Catholic, Akron North and Canton Lehman meet in Kent this morning to draw for opponents in the semi-final round of the Class A title playoffs to be held Saturday in the Kent State university gymnasium.

Somerset, a small school of 55 boys which hit a championship stride in tournament competition after losing six games during the regular season, handed Bremen its first setback of the season, 49 to 42, to capture the Class B toga at Springfield Saturday night.

Canton Lehman may prove to be a Class A parallel of Somerset. Jim Robinson's Lehman cagers dropped seven tilts out of 17 during the regular season and then roared to six tournament victories in the strong northeastern district and regional meets. Lehman had the second worst record among the 16 district titleholders battling in the regional tourneys last weekend.

Despite its poor season mark including defeats in the last two games on its schedule, Coach Frank Sowecke's Somerset club emerged as the "Cinderella team" on the 1942 Class B season.

Sparked by two sharpshooting twin brothers, Richard and Robert Starkey, and a towering center, Ike Dupler, the Perry county outfit became "hot" when tournament time rolled around last month.

They reached a peak in the state meet, knocking off Tipp City, 38 to 19; Webster township, 37 to 24, and Waynesburg, 44 to 26, before outclassing Bremen who has gone undefeated in 26 previous clashes. Tipp City and Webster had lost one game each and Waynesburg only three prior to the Springfield meet.

Sowecke, a graduate of Ohio State who didn't play basketball in college, piloted a state champion in only his second year of coaching. The triumph also brought the state title to Perry county for the second year in a row Glenford won it last year but was eliminated in the county playoffs this winter.

The quality of the Class B meet soared to the highest level in recent years. The boys seemed big ger, better coached and more inclined toward quick-thinking team play instead of the hell-bent individual scoring sorties of the last couple of years. Bremen's 33 to 31 conquest of favored Bluffton in the semi-finals was the most stirring game but it is doubtful if anybody could have beaten the tireless Somerset five which put on its strongest drive in the closing minutes of a contest

The first year of the new Class A tourney setup finds the southeastern, Eastern and central districts without a representative in the semi-finals.

On the basis of its past state tourney record and familiarity with the Kent floor, North rates as the "team-to-beat" Saturday. The Vikings, who now have a won-lost mark of 22-2, voluntarily entered the eastern regional at Dennison and proceeded to romp through the meet, trimming Cambridge, 47 to 37, in the finals

Xenia (23-1) enters the Kent finals with the best won-lost record and the valuable experience of a semi-finalist from last year's state tourney at Columbus where the Buccaneers bowed by two points to the eventual champions Mattins Ferry Coach Tom Blackburn's five rallied 31 to 23 Saturday night

Toledo Catholic (27-2) survived the All-Northwestern regional at Findlay by edging Mansfield, 36 to 34, in the finals. Lehman subdued the long-shooting Warren five, 42 to 37, in the Northeastern finals at Youngstown.

North will be the only former champion in the semi-finals Lu Hosfield's Vikings grabbed the state title in 1935 and 1939 and appeared in one other meet, losing to Dover in the second round in 1937. Xenia has played in two past state classics, 1939 and 1941 This is the second trip for Central Catholic and Lehman. Central bowed out in the first round in 1934 and Lehman lost in the first round in 1940

NEW YORK—Tom Deegan, the Fordham publicist, has figured out a way to make the guys who use "Annie Oakleys" contribute to the war program — which rates him three rahs and a ram. . . . Fordham will take a defense service charge of a 25-cent defense stamp onto each complimentary football ticket next fall and figures to collect about $1,200 for Uncle Sam . . . The treasury department likes the idea so well that Deegan has been asked to coordinate it nationally. . . . Clark Shaughnessy says he is going to Maryland to find more to do. Buckeyes Plan Service Games

Bierman's Naval Club Appears Certain Bet.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Football teams from the naval aviation cadet training center at Iowa City, Ia., and the army post at Fort Knox, Ky., received an unofficial nod today as the most likely service elevens to play Ohio State university here this fall.

L. W. St. John, Buckeye athletic director, indicated the naval cadet team coached by Bernie Bierman, former Minnesota mentor, was virtually assured as an opponent, although negotiations are incomplete. A game with Fort Knox is likely, he added.

St. John explained that western conference directors at their March 6-7 meeting in Chicago agreed to permit Big Ten grid teams to play two games with service elevens.

He disclosed that Camp Shelby and Great Lakes Naval Training station teams had been considered but that neither would be signed because of distances involved or full schedules already completed.

Both of Ohio State's games with service teams will be played in Columbus with part of the proceeds going to service organizations, St. John said.

FORMER SWIM STAR TURNS TO BOWLING

NEW YORK—(AP)—One of the country's former great swim stars is now a crack bowler. Helen Wainwright was a standout in both swimming and diving. She tied for the Olympic diving crown in 1920 and four years later was second in the 400 meters race

Now as Mrs. Helen W. Stelling, she has been bowling for two years and is the leading bowler in three New York leagues. She has a 172 average in one league. Mrs. Stelling, who hasn't competed in a swimming meet since 1930, says she likes bowling far more than she did swimming.

Toledo Looms As Best Team

Rockets Now Hold All Garden Scoring Marks.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Madison Square Garden's national invitation basketball tournament, which already has produced a trio of upsets and three new scoring records, comes up to the semi-finals tonight with a lineup unlike the one the sponsors planned when they passed out the bids.

Toledo university, the only team left from among the four top-seeded quintets in the original field of eight, clashes with West Virginia in the opener tonight and Creighton university tangles with Western Kentucky in the afterpiece.

Of the seeded quintets only Toledo ran true to form. The Rockets broke every Garden scoring record in out-shooting high-geared Rhode Island State, 82-71.

* * *

Center Bob Gerber, the Toledo ace, scorched the net for 17 field goals and three free tosses, a total of 37 points which wiped out all previous individual marks in the Eighth avenue sports palace, tournament or otherwise. The Toledo score and its total of 36 field goals also were new records.

Writer Says Lou Boudreau Commands Players' Respect

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

CLEARWATER, Fla.—(U.P.)—The Cleveland Indians have lost much in the way of playing strength but seemingly have gained that happy "one-for-all-and-all-for-one" spirit they've been seeking vainly for some 20 years under managers from Tris Speaker down through the stormy regime of Oscar Vitt.

* * *

Radical as it may have seemed at the time of his appointment, elevation of Lou Boudreau, 24-year-old college-boy shortstop, to the managerial post now looks like the wisest decision the Cleveland front office has made in a decade or longer.

Boudreau will do the job Peckinpaugh, Vitt, O'Neill, Johnson, McAllister and even Speaker failed to do. A born leader, Boudreau commands respect and authority. There's an air about the Indians they haven't had in years. Even the old malcontents have caught the fever.

Rosy as are the attitude and department of the Tribe, the general outlook is somewhat bleak. The Indians have lost Bob Feller, 25-game winner, and Outfielder Soup Campbell to the service. They've sold Catcher Rollie Hemsley to the Reds, and must do without Hal Trosky, once the Tribe's most potent slugger, who has retired because of migraine headaches. In addition, Gee Walker, one of Cleveland's two right-handed hitting outfielders, remains an adamant holdout.

Biggest problem confronting the dark, flashing-eyed Boudreau is his pitching. The staff is a conglomeration of rookies, castoffs, and veterans who've seen better days. If you can name the ace of the tribe's staff you are a better man than Boudreau. It might be one of the two lefties, Al Milnar, who won 18 games in 1940 but lost 19 last season, or the canny Al Smith. Again is might be Righthander Jim Bagby; Veteran Vernon Kennedy, picked up from the Browns, or one of the rookies, Earl Center or Charlie Embree from Wilkes-Barre or Ray Poat, who won 17 games and fanned 202 batters at Cedar Rapids last season.

Weak-hitting Gene DeSantles will have to shoulder most of the catching burden, with Otto Denning, a .329 hitter from Minneapolis, and Jim Hegan, a .232 hitter from Wilkes-Barre, in reserve.

Leslie Fleming, who slugged out .414 for Nashville last season, will take over Trosky's post and has shown enough power to get the cleanup job in the batting order. Ray Mack and Oscar Grimes are battling for the second-base job. The left side of the infield is Cleveland's strongest spot with Boudreau at short and Ken Keltner at third.

With Jeff Heath, who hit .340 last year, booked for left and Roy Weatherly, 18 pounds lighter than last season, set for center, the only open outfield job is right field. Gee Walker, if and when he signs, may have a job beating out Rookie Henry Edwards, a .364 hitter from Cedar Rapids, and Fabian Gaffke, a .305 hitter from Minneapolis.

MODEST PLUS SIGNS SHOWN ON MART LIST

News Continues Uninspiring But Business Picture Has Bright Tinge.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market took on an assortment of modest plus signs today after a somewhat hesitant start.

Early support was accorded General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Steel, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Youngstown Sheet, Montgomery Ward, Glenn Martin, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, American Smelting, Westinghouse, American Can, Philip Morris and Johns-Manville.

Backward at times were Standard Oil (N. J.), Texas Co., International Harvester, Crucible Steel and Chesapeake and Ohio.

Scant inspiration again was discerned in the war bulletins and, while the business picture was fairly bright, potential share buyers inclined to step carefully pending more light on tax problems and proposed congressional legislation anent labor and profits.

Market analysts studied the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that "by far the greater part of steel orders on mill books is concentrated in upper priority brackets, shipments on ratings below A-1-B being slowed up and mills as a rule accepting no new commitments lower than A-1-J."

Some encouragement was derived from the federal reserve summary indicating industrial activity increased further in February and the first half of March. The board's production index advanced 2 points in the first half of the current month to 173 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

THEATERS

Musicale Spectacle.

The screen version of "Louisiana Purchase," the musical extravaganza that ran for weeks and weeks on Broadway, and is now the attraction at the Ohio, has three of the principals from the stage production plus Bob Hope. Vera Zorina, the dancer, Victor Moore, comedian, and Irene Bordoni, the French singer and commedienne, hail from the Broadway success and the cast also has Maxie Rosenbloom. Set in New Orleans the picture, filmed in technicolor, lists among its spectacles a Mardi Gras sequence and the Beaux Arts Ball, annual Mardi Gras feature. Dozens of beautiful girls and music by Irving Berlin are other attributes.

Kyser Comedy.

Kay Kyser and John Barrymore blend their flair for comedy with fiery Lupe Velez, Patsy Kelly, and Kyser's "College of Musical Knowledge" in the Madison attraction. "Playmates," The Ol' Professor and the Great Profile play themselves on the screen and are brought together by a press agent's scheme calling for Barrymore to tutor Kyser in Shakespeare. Miss Kelly and Peter Lind Hayes play the press agents and hilarity results from their well-meaning efforts. Ginny Simms and Kyser's band introduce five catchy new song hits. The warmth and color of pioneer days is captured in "Valley of The Sun," showing as the second attraction with Lucille Ball and James Craig and Billy Gilbert.

Stirring Drama.

Three famous negro football stars, Kenny Washington, Woody Strode and Al Duval make their screen debut in "Sundown," the Park feature starring Gene Tierney, Bruce Cabot and Harry Carey. The trio are cast as African natives in the picture that revolves around a small group of white men who rule over several hundred blacks in Britain's Kenya Colony in Central East Africa. Rebellions furnish plenty of action and Miss Tierney provides the eastern glamor. "Tanks a Million," an army comedy with James Gleason is the second attraction.

Broadway Theme.

Broadway's youthful hopefuls stage their own show to win recognition from producers and casting directors who won't give them a break in "Babes On Broadway," the Mickey Rooney-Judy Garland co-starring musical spectacle at the Ritz. Fay Bainter has a leading role as a producer's associate who paves the way for their initial success. "Henry Aldrich For President," with Jimmy Lydon and June Preisser is the second picture.
